Hello Examiner Tecklu,

As we discussed last week, I have further amended the remaining independent claims with language similar to claim 15 (specifically, the "creating ... integrating ... compiling ..." language). Attached is a revised proposed claim amendments document for your consideration.

Thank You,
Cory Jones

Hello Examiner Tecklu,

In response to your phone call on Monday (Nov. 9), we discussed amending the remaining independent claims with language from claim 1 that you believed should be allowable. Specifically, the language in question from claim 1 includes: "wherein the code generator constructs one or more software development components of a plurality of different software development tools ..." and "wherein the code generator further creates the plurality of different software development tools ..."

In response, the remaining independent claims have been amended to include at least one software development component of a plurality of different software development tools (or similar language) and generating such plurality of different software development tools (or similar language). Attached is a PDF document containing the proposed claim amendments for your consideration. In addition, some dependent claims have been amended to correspond with their respective independent claim amendments.

Thank You,
Cory Jones
